

{business days} How long do Robinhood disputes take?

Robinhood dispute (+1-956-230-6731) resolution timelines can vary based on the nature of the issue, but in most cases, (+1-956-230-6731) users can expect the review process to take (+1-956-230-6731) 5 to 10 business days for standard disputes such as incorrect charges, trade errors, or account balance concerns. More (+1-956-230-6731) complex cases—especially those involving unauthorized transactions, suspected fraud, or compliance reviews—may take up to (+1-956-230-6731) 30 days or longer, as they require additional verification and investigation. During this period (+1-956-230-6731), Robinhood may request supporting (+1-956-230-6731) documents or clarification, and responding promptly can help avoid delays. Users typically (+1-956-230-6731) receive updates through email or in-app notifications, making it important to monitor (+1-956-230-6731) communications closely. While waiting can be frustrating, the process (+1-956-230-6731) is designed to ensure accuracy and account security, and most disputes are resolved once (+1-956-230-6731) all required information has been reviewed thoroughly.